The ANX® Directory Services ("the directory") acts as the key enabler for collaborative on-line work environments. The directory is comprised of users, groups and companies and serves as a common point for authentication within the ANX® Portal ("the portal") and access to applications hosted within the portal.

There are six primary sections within the directory:

- Search allows you to find people and companies by name or location. You may also perform a category search to find a listing of companies offering a particular service.
- User Registration allows you to submit a new user registration form to establish a valid username and password for access to collaborative applications within the portal.
- Group Creation allows users who have an account within the portal to create public or private grouping of users. These groups may be used to control access within the portal's collaborative applications.
- User Profile Update allows users who have an account within the portal to update their group information.
- Group Update allows group leaders or group members to update group information.
- Advertising provides information about advertising within the portal.

The Document Repository enables you to upload and store documents on the ANX® Portal server ("the server") instead of keeping files locally. Once you have signed in to the ANX® Portal you will see a file directory structure containing your folders and files. You will be able to navigate through folders that you have created, in addition to navigating through folders that other ANX® Portal users have given you permission to see.

The Document Repository will manage all your documents for you. Once uploaded to the server, your documents are encrypted to ensure complete protection. Your documents are backed-up regularly so you can be assured you will always have access to your documents when you need them.

There are four primary pages within the Document Repository:

- View Files displays your file directory structure containing your folders and files. From this page, you can upload new documents to the repository, download documents from the repository, create new folders and delete documents from the repository.
- Search Files allows you to search for files based on keywords. You enter keywords when you upload a document so that you can search for your document at a later date.
- Activity Log keeps track of the files uploaded and downloaded listing the dates, times and locations of file.

Document Store & Forward

Upload Document Store & Forward is a service offered to ANX® Portal users ("portal users") that provides secure, reliable delivery of documents to any other portal users. Similar to the FedEx® package tracking model, Document Store & Forward enables you to upload a document to the ANX® Portal server ("the server") and specify a list of recipients who will be notified to retrieve that document. We keep track of which users have downloaded your document and when they downloaded it so you can be assured of guaranteed delivery.

Welcome to ANXnet

There are four primary pages within the Document Store & Forward:

- Upload allows you to upload a document to the server and specify a list of recipients who should receive notification to download the document. Documents may be sent to any ANX® Portal user or ANX® Portal group that exists within the ANX® Directory. You specify how long your document remains active on the server and whether it should be deleted automatically after a successful download by your recipients.
- Download displays an inbox with a list of documents that have been sent to you for retrieval. You download the document to your local file system, and the originator of the document receives notification that you have successfully retrieved it.
- Activity Log keeps track of your documents uploaded by data, revision, list, download date, last update, last modification

Big Three On-Line Platform Part of Business Deconstruction

2/29/2000 The Big Three's decision to combine their on-line procurement platform foreshadows the next generation of business-to-business e-commerce, says a management consulting firm today. Cross-industry supply networks, like the one Ford, GM, and DaimlerChrysler just formed, represent a critical and inevitable event in business-to-business e-commerce, says Thomas Wurster, SVP at The Boston Consulting Group. The only hurdle to more of these relationships -- and it's not a big hurdle at all -- is that companies and industries agree to common technological communications standards to make those networks more efficient, he says.

"Ford, GM and DaimlerChrysler are deconstructing their own businesses," adds Philip Evans, another SVP at the group. "They are taking a valuable information asset from their businesses -- their combined purchasing buy of more than $160 billion -- and leveraging it in a creative way to write more value out of it. It is good to see incumbents such as Ford and GM deconstruct themselves rather than

The GyroChips are used in automotive stability control systems. In these systems, sensors provide vital motion information to the car's on-board microprocessor to instantly assure the vehicle's response to the driver's steering intentions on ice, snow or other hazardous roads. Through selective and automatic braking on individual wheels, these systems can compensate for oversteer or understeer conditions.
